

No Longer a Farm Boy

By David Hurtado

The son of Twin Suns is no longer a child. Scarred by the deaths of aunt and uncle, he now walks across the sky. From a backwater world of sun-scorched flatlands to a moon of sprawling tropical jungles, he has found his calling.

Among newfound allies armed with courage and a dream of freedom, he stands fast against an almighty empire. 30 minutes until the twilight of their rebellion, or dawn of a new hope.

S-Foils locked in attack position, his answer to the sins of a genocidal empire is at hand. No longer will their cradle of power enslave the galaxy beneath an iron boot.

Even as his brothers are silenced in the dark of deep space, the old hermit's words strengthen his resolve. Let go, trust your feelings...

So he does. And that mechanical aberration forged in the name of order is consumed by the brilliance of a man made sun.